

Work in Marks Nature Park Continues

On Monday, January 11, City crews will remove about twenty trees from Marks Nature Park. The park has been closed to the public following a fire in November.

As a result of the fire, some trees which were already in a compromised condition were damaged. City staff recently completed a hazard assessment of the affected trees and it was determined more than twenty trees are at high risk and require mitigative measures before the park is considered safe. Given the specialized nature of the tree work and available resources, the work was scheduled for completion in early 2021.

Once the work is complete, Marks Nature Park will reopen for community use.
